

A creative Junior Designer with a passion for well-planned, functional design solutions that improve people's experience of places.

City ID is a multi-disciplinary team of designers, urbanists and planners with a global reputation for improving the experience of cities, places and transit systems.

We are seeking a dedicated and self-motivated recent graduate to join our small, but expanding team in San Francisco. We are looking for an individual that is curious and passionate about developing design solutions that improve the everyday experience of places. In particular, we would like to meet candidates that have an understanding of evidence-based design approaches and an interest in working on complex projects across place branding, placemaking, wayfinding, information design and transit information design.

The role

This is an exciting opportunity for a Junior Designer to work within a collaborative, highly creative design team on the development of innovative design strategies and projects.

Core responsibilities

- _ Involvement in all stages of the design process from research to conceptualization to delivery
- _ Design of communication concepts and development of information design products and services, user experience design (UX) and interface design.

Other responsibilities

- _ Support and assist in knowledge building research
- _ Assist with design planning activities
- _ Assist design team in narrative building
- _ Present work to design team and collaborators

Experience and skills

- _ A degree in Graphic Design/Visual Communication or related field
- _ Strong design aesthetic and attention to detail
- _ Proficiency with Adobe Creative Suite, particularly in Illustrator and InDesign
- _ Knowledge of GIS software and an interest cartography would be advantageous
- _ Good verbal, written, presentational and interpersonal communication skills

Projects are based throughout the U.S. and sometimes further afield. A willingness to travel is essential.

To apply

We're interested in hearing from both recent graduates, and designers with some experience. Please email a covering letter, resumé, reference details, current and/or expectations of starting salary/package and your portfolio to Alex Hendrie with Junior Designer, San Francisco in the subject line to: opportunities@cityid.com

Please note, for this role we can only consider candidates who are authorized to work in the U.S.

Closing date: January 31st, 2019
